DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. Claims 1-3, 5-7 and 9-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 1, last line, “said polymner (misspelled) alloy sheet” lacks express antecedent basis.

The claimed term “modified” is indefinite as to scope and meaning. Applicants’ argument that modified polyphenylene ether refers to a blend of PPE with polystyrene is not commensurate in scope with the present claims.

Claim 15 is indefinite for depending upon a cancelled claim.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102/103

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 1711

4. Claims 1-3, 5-7 and 9-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over U.S. 6,045,883 (Akiyama et al) as per reasons of record.

The presently claimed masking member relates to a sheet manufactured by vacuum and/or pressure forming, preferably having a thickness in the range between 0.1 mm and 1.5 mm (claim 9). Akiyama et al disclose sheets having a thickness of 0.5 mm produced from compositions similar to those of applicants, that is, compositions comprising polypropylene, polyphenylene ether and compatibility agent wherein the polyphenylene ether is dispersed in a matrix of the polypropylene resin. See the experimental sheets having a thickness of 0.5 mm prepared from the exemplified compositions (column 18, lines 30-32). Since the sheets of the reference are structurally the same as applicants', it is reasonably believed that said sheets meet the requirements of the presently claimed masking member.

The preambular "for attaching to a part of an article to which a coating should not be applied" is not accorded any patentable weight because it merely recites the intended use of the claimed sheet structure. A recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. In this case, no structural difference is between the claimed invention and the prior art.

Response to Arguments

5. Applicant's arguments filed November 21, 2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

It is maintained that no difference, structurally or chemically, can be seen between the sheets of Akiyama et al and those defining the presently claimed masking members. The sheets exemplified by the reference are not only made from the same composition but also have the same thickness as those presently claimed. The preambular “for attaching to a part of an article to which a coating should not be applied” is not accorded any patentable weight because it merely recites the intended use of the claimed sheet structure. A recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. In this case, no structural difference is between the claimed invention and the prior art.

Conclusion

6. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
